Resignation of Vice President Ross

The President of the Australian Industrial Relations Commission, Justice Geoffrey Giudice, today announced the resignation of Vice President Iain Ross AO, effective from close of business on Friday, 27 January.

Justice Giudice acknowledged the important contribution which Vice President Ross has made to the work of the Commission and the valuable role he has played in industrial dispute resolution in Australia.

Iain Ross was appointed a Vice President of the Commission in March 1994 at the age of 35. He previously served as an assistant secretary of the Australian Council of Trade Unions.

He leaves the Commission to take up a partnership with the law firm Corrs Chambers Westgarth.
